MANAGEMENT’S DISCUSSION OF FUND PERFORMANCE

Market Overview

Global equity markets continued their strong advance during the six months ended September 30, 2025, supported by moderating inflation data, renewed confidence in corporate earnings, rising expectations for monetary easing, and continued excitement about the prospects for artificial intelligence. US equities again led the rally, powered by a narrow group of mega-cap technology stocks, while European and Asian markets also delivered solid gains. Value-oriented global equities participated but lagged more growth-oriented sectors as investors remained captivated by themes tied to artificial intelligence and long-term growth.

In this continued “risk on” market environment, the Tweedy, Browne Value Fund (the “Fund”) made considerable financial progress, producing a return of 9.11% during the six months ending September 30, but trailed its primary benchmark index, the MSCI World Index in US dollars, which finished the semi-annual period up 19.58%.

The Fund’s policy of hedging its foreign currency exposure modestly reduced returns, as several major currencies, including the euro, Swiss franc, and pound, strengthened against the US dollar during the period. Against the MSCI World Index (Hedged to the USD), the Fund’s secondary benchmark, the Fund compared marginally better for the six months with a gain of 9.11% versus a gain of 18.04% for such index; it outperformed for the year-to-date period (nine months) with a return of 15.98% versus 15.00% for the Index.

What Impacted Performance During the Period?

On an absolute return basis, the Fund’s health care, financials, and industrials were the largest contributors to results, driven by strong performance among select biotechnology, insurance, and aerospace holdings. Energy and consumer staples detracted, reflecting weaker oil prices and mixed results among beverage producers. Geographically, Japan, Germany, and South Korea contributed most positively, while Switzerland, the Netherlands, and France detracted modestly due to underperformance in their consumer, industrials, and pharmaceutical holdings. Larger-cap and mid-cap holdings added most to results, and smaller companies also contributed incrementally.

How Has the Fund Historically Performed?

The following graph and chart compare the initial and subsequent account values at the end of each of the most recently completed 10 years of the Fund. It assumes a $10,000 initial investment at the beginning of the first year in an appropriate, broad-based securities market index for the same period.

The Fund has changed its comparative broad-based securities market index from MSCI World Index (Hedged to U.S.$) to the MSCI World Index (in U.S.$) in order to comply with new regulatory requirements regarding the presentation of comparative index performance.

GROWTH OF $10,000

AVERAGE ANNUAL TOTAL RETURNS	6 MONTH	1 YEAR	5 YEARS	10 YEARS

The preceding performance data represents past performance and is not a guarantee of future results. Total return and principal value of an investment will fluctuate so that an investor's shares, when redeemed, may be worth more or less than their original cost. The graph and table do not reflect the deduction of taxes that a shareholder would pay on Fund distributions or the redemption of Fund shares. Current performance may be lower or higher than the performance data shown. Results are annualized for all periods greater than one year.
